WAR VESSELS.

The Very Latest Respecting Uncle Sam's Navy.

THE PHILADELPHIA WILL BE THE NEXT VESSEL LAUNCHED.

She Will Be Ready About March 1, and Is Expected to Beat the Baltimore in Speed—The Construction of Seven New Vessels to Be Left to Secretary Whitney's Successor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Herald's Washington special says: The next new ship to be launched will be the steel protected cruiser Philadelphia, now building at the Messrs. Cramp's yard. She will be ready about the 1st of March next.

The Philadelphia will be of 4,400 tons displacement and will have twin screws. She will be bark-rigged and will carry twelve six inch guns in her main battery. The ship is expected to beat the Baltimore in speed, as the Messrs. Cramp supply their own engines, while the motive power for the Baltimore is supplied by Messrs. Humphreys & Tennant, the well known English builders.

The Messrs. Cramp guarantee a speed of nineteen knots for the Philadelphia, while the English firm guarantee only horse power. For every additional one quarter knot secured in the speed of the Philadelphia the Cramps are to receive $50,000 additional, and as they expect to exceed the contract speed by at least two knots a nice sum of money will be realized if they carry out their predictions.

It will be very interesting to the navy to compare the work of these two sets of engines when both vessels are in commission. The model of the Philadelphia is English, but the Cramps say it is a very good one, and they are confident that the speed developed will be in excess of that called for by the specifications.

The main battery for the Philadelphia is now ready, although the ship is not expected to be ready to go into commission for about fifteen months.

Secretary Whitney, as previously intimated, has determined to leave all the work connected with the construction of the seven new vessels of war, authorized by the last congress, to his successor, and in order to facilitate the work that official has designated a board of officers, consisting of Commodore Schley, chief of the bureau of equipment; Commodore Sigsbee, chief of the bureau of ordnance; Engineer in Chief Melville, and Chief Constructor Wilson, to prepare plans for all the vessels except the steel practice vessels, the plans for which are being made at the naval academy.

The board will submit the results of its labor to Mr. Whitney's successor, who will in this way find much of the work looking to carrying out of provisions for the increase of the navy in the last appropriation act already done. He will be entirely free, however, to act as he may see fit, for Secretary Whitney does not intend to approve any plan, or to advertise for bids to construct any of the vessels. All this will be left for the next secretary of the navy. The vessels authorized by the last appropriation for which the board will prepare plans are two steel cruisers of 10,000 tons displacement each, one steel cruiser of 5,500 tons displacement, one armored cruiser of 7,500 tons displacement, and three gunboats, or cruisers, of not more than 2,000 tons displacement each.

Secretary Whitney had at one time determined to select the designs for several of these vessels himself. In fact he had determined upon the plans for the 7,500 ton vessel which were procured from Sir Edward Reed, the famous English designer, before the act was passed, and it was upon his recommendation that the naval committee authorized a vessel of that tonnage. But in view of blunders that have lately been discovered in the plans of the Texas and the objection raised by naval officers and other experts to all the foreign plans submitted, the secretary, as above stated, has concluded to trust to American ingenuity to produce acceptable designs.

The Haytian Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A brief report has been received at the navy department from Capt. Ramsey, commanding the "Boston," who is now at Port-au-Prince investigating the situation of affairs there. His communication is dated Port-au-Prince, November 11, and in it he reports that the Haitian government have already released the schooner William Jones, which they had seized, but had declined to release the American steamer "Haytian Republic." Capt. Ramsey expresses the hope, however, that he will finally be able to secure the peaceful release of the vessel.

An Embezzler Caught.

VAN LOOPS, B. C., Nov. 21.—Conductor Barnhardt, in charge of the Atlantic express, which left Van Couver Thursday, having received a telegram at Spences bridge that F. Moore, alias F. Simpson, alias F. Scott, of Los Angeles, wanted for embezzling $13,000 from the Northern Pacific express, was probably a passenger on his train, found him sleeping in a first-class car. Barnhardt placed a guard over him and wired here to have an officer ready. When Moore was found he had $12,118, all in a small valise.

Mormon Recruits.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 21.—Alabama is proving a profitable field for the missionary just now. Thirty converts in charge of a Mormon elder passed through here Monday, all coming from this neighborhood. Most of them were women, not a few being children, all tickled for Utah. A carload went from north Alabama ten days ago, and a big gang went from south Alabama a week ago.

Dynamiters Indicted.

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 21.—Monday George Clark and George Meloy, of this city, and John A. Baureisen, of Aurora, Burlington strikers, indicted on a charge of conspiring to destroy Burlington trains with dynamite, appeared before Judge Smith in the circuit court and gave bonds in the sum of $3,000 each to appear for trial Monday, November 26.

A BIG FOUR WRECK.

The Rails Spread, and Five Cars are Overturned—The Injured.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21.—A serious wreck occurred on the Big Four road this morning about 7 o'clock at a point known as Simonson's curve, about two miles this side of Harrison. The Harrison accommodation jumped the track and five coaches were turned completely over. The engine of the wrecked train ran on down to Valley Junction. The accident was caused by a spread rail.

There were only forty passengers on the train and the first intimation they had of the accident was the jarring movement of the coaches over the sleepers, then the swaying movement to one side and then the fall sideways and the accompanying crash of cracking timbers and shattering glass.

For one brief instant all was quiet, then there arose from the long line of yellow-colored cars a chorus of shrieks, groans and cries for help.

Conductor Bell was one of the first men out. He and his crew set about with might and main to free the passengers. To add to apparent horrors of the situation a column of yellow smoke began to pour from the rear car, denoting the fact that the deadly car stove was getting in its work. The train men hurried first to this car. It was in full blaze inside. A few buckets of water from a trench luckily near quenched the fire.

From the road bed the cars looked like a long yellow snake, lying helpless. From car windows boot legs would come into view through glass and shutters as the passengers strove to free themselves.

The following is a list of the seriously injured:

Mrs. Martha Moore, aged eighty years, residence Wilmington, Clinton county, Ohio, injured internally and cut over right eye—will probably die.

Mrs. Margaret Carroll, aged sixty years, residence Spring Grove avenue, near stock yards, Cincinnati. Severe wound in back of head, supposed to be of very serious nature.

James P. Dick, of Harrison, O., cut in left temple and several scalp and cheek wounds.

Miss May Green, of Harrison, O., employed by Weatherly, Stevens & Company, painful scalp wounds.

George Yeager, of Harrison, O., severe wound in right hand.

Harvey Hamilton, of Harrison, O., big scalp wound.

Will Yeager, of Harrison, O., scalp wounds.

Thirty-five other passengers more or less skinned and bruised, and will have to wear court plaster and affect amica for many a day.

AN ELECTRICAL PHENOMENON.

St. Elmo's Fire Badly Frightens the Crew of a Swedish Vessel.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Swedish ship Edward, loaded with iron ore, arrived Monday from Havre, and a remarkable story is told by the officers and crew of a hair-raising encounter with an electrical storm. The captain says:

"The weather had been dirty and ugly. At 3:30 in the morning the men were bracing the main-yards, when their work was interrupted by a loud crash of thunder and an explosion which sounded to us like the report of a thousand cannon. The lightning struck the main rigging directly over the men, and at the same moment a ball of fire, just like a shell, bobbed about the rigging and then exploded. When the ball of fire exploded streaks of flame darted in every direction.

"It was just like the falling of stars. For miles around the sea was illuminated, and every cord in our rigging shone like strands of silver. The brilliancy was but momentary, and we were left in darkness. In less than five minutes, and before we had recovered from the shock of the previous bolt, another terrible flash of lightning, followed by an explosion of another ball of fire, sent us scurrying in every direction for shelter. We were all thoroughly frightened. The crew could not do any work. But our fears and astonishment were destined to be still further increased.

"Just as we were getting on our feet again and thanking God that we had escaped with our lives, there was another thrilling display. I was standing on the quarter deck and the men were about to again attempt to brace the main-yards. Suddenly, and with an awful sound, a flash of lightning broke right above the main rigging, and out of it we could see another ball of fire playing above the rigging from the starboard side, right over to the port side. It, too, exploded, but with a noise and scattering of flaming fragments which sunk the previous ones into comparative insignificance.

"I was dazed, and when I recovered sight and sense not one of my men was on his feet. The whole crew was prostrate; some tumbling about on top of each other, some crying with fear and others stretched on their backs as though they had been struck dead. As soon as the crew was able to get around I made a thorough examination of the vessel and rigging. It was not injured in the least and showed no signs whatever of the awful fusillade."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 21.—A special from Sumnerfield, Ala., says that the family of William Morgan, a white citizen and farmer, were poisoned Monday and some of them may die. They ate food for dinner prepared by a negro servant, and immediately all fell ill. The food has not yet been analyzed. The negro was arrested and confessed. The family numbered six.

WATERLOO, Iowa, Nov. 21.—United States Marshal Edmund, of Iowa, is at Fort Dodge with warrants for the execution of the eight or twelve hundred families on the Des Moines land. Bloodshed is feared upon the attempt to execute the writs.

THE CONVENTION.

What Is Being Done By the Knights at Indianapolis.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY'S ACTION FREELY CRITICISED.

Conflicting Elements and Delicate Questions Make the Session Highly Interesting—Internal Attempts Being Made to Break Up the Order—The Pope and the Knights.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 21.—Criticism is free upon the action of the general assembly, Knights of Labor, in the case of William Gleason, of Chicago, as compared with other cases. Gleason was expelled by District Assembly No. 34, and appealed to the general assembly, which sustains his appeal, and relegates the charges back to his local assembly.

This is in accordance with the constitution of the order; yet in the case of J. M. Bloomer, of Toledo, expelled by the general executive board, the committee's report in favor of reinstating Bloomer, and referring his case to his local, was rejected and the action of the executive board in expelling him sustained. As Barry and others were expelled by the executive board its power had to be maintained in all cases.

A significant resolution has been prepared, as follows:

"RESOLVED, That it is the sense of the general assembly that National trades districts are contrary to the spirit of this order, and that all National trades districts be requested to surrender their charters immediately; further, that the general executive board and the officers of the order shall hereafter cease to interfere in trade matters."

Members, in speaking of this, even go so far as to say—for some reason—a deliberate attempt is being made internally to break up the Knights of Labor organization, for there are many trades which will have nothing to do with any order that will not fully allow them the right of regulating their own affairs so far as refers to their particular branch, of which they feel they know more than any general board, or anybody else can.

The matter of uniting the two great organizations of mine laborers, the National district assembly, organized under the Knights of Labor, and the National Federation of Miners and Mine Laborers, will not be settled until the meeting of miners at Columbus, O., on December 5, if then.

The executive board has asked this general assembly to invest the board with power to expel obnoxious members. Editor Datwiler, of the Chicago Knight of Labor, was here the other day taking in ideas, which appeared in his paper on Saturday, severely criticizing this general assembly for arbitrary action under Powderly's personal direction, and asserting that Powderly and Litchman were afraid to have certain things made public.

Powderly denounced the article, and had referred to committee a resolution to the effect that whenever a member of the order shall, through the public press, make accusations of misdemeanor against members and officials of the order, without first having made and sustained those accusations before the proper court of the order, he lays himself open to immediate expulsion by the general executive board, without trial. Litchman and others supported the resolution, and it will pass.

Much interest is felt in the news that the church of Rome will continue to tolerate the Knights of Labor.

The Pope's Decree.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Catholic News prints the text of the decree of the pope regarding the Knights of Labor. It includes this statement: "After having attentively studied the whole subject the sacred congregation has directed me to reply that, so far as at present appears, the association of the Knights of Labor can for the moment be tolerated."

"The sacred congregation merely requires that the necessary modifications should be introduced in the rules of the society, to make clear whatever might seem obscure or might be interpreted in a bad sense. These modifications are required particularly in passages of the preface to the rules concerning local associations. And then the words 'savoring of socialism and communism must be corrected in such a way that they shall only affirm the right, conferred by God on man, of acquiring property, using legitimate means, and respecting the proportionate rights of all others.'"

The Strike Is Unchanged.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 21.—The report that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy strike is about to be settled is denied at the headquarters of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in this city. Chief Arthur was not to be seen, but First Assistant Grand Engineer Ingraham stated that there was no foundation for the story telegraphed from Chicago. Chief Arthur, when seen later, emphatically denied the truth of the report, and said that the strike remains unchanged.

Killed in a Quarrel.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Thomas F. Dunn, aged twenty-six years, of No. 68 Broadway, quarreled last evening with some unknown man on the corner of Broadway and Fulton street, and during the melee Dunn was knocked down and severely kicked, suffering injuries from which he died early this morning. The physicians who attended Dunn said that his skull was fractured. His assailants have not been arrested.

Wreck Follows Wreck.

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., Nov. 21.—On Saturday afternoon a freight train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy ran into a gravel train near this place, wrecking an engine and several cars. Monday afternoon while the wrecking train was clearing away the debris it was run into by an extra freight, demolishing another engine and several cars. No one was injured in either wreck.

GERMAN LITERARY SOCIETY.

Exercises Celebrating the Birthday of the Poet Schiller—Address by Professor Kappes.

The German Literary Society, of this city, met at the home of Professor J. H. Kappes Monday evening to celebrate the birthday of the great poet Schiller. The society was first addressed by Professor Kappes in German and then in English. His remarks were in substance as follows:

Some thirty years ago, when I first came to Kentucky, it would have been impossible to form anywhere a German society for the purpose of studying the language of the fatherland. I recall the time when to the ears of most Kentuckians the name of Schiller was an empty sound. While residing in Nicholasville, a young physician, who had the misfortune to be a member of the Kentucky Legislature, asked me one day whether I possessed the works of the Dutch poet "Schiller," and whether I had ever read the "Sorrows of Werter," by "Goethe." Even in the then literary city of Lexington, the seat of Transylvania University, there were scarcely half a dozen persons who could read the language in which these works were composed, or could judge of a German author otherwise than through the medium of an imperfect translation.

What a change has taken place! And how has it been brought about? As early as 1819 Thomas Carlyle went to Germany to study at the ancient University of Gottingen. He made German literature and philosophy a specialty, and under the inspiration of the old poet Goethe, with whom he became intimately acquainted, he gained such a thorough insight into the depth and grandeur of these subjects, that he felt it his duty to arouse his own countrymen to a sense of their value. In 1827 he wrote those matchless articles in the Edinburgh Review on the beauties of Schiller's and Goethe's works. He made the English mind familiar with German thought, and the thoroughness of instruction given in German colleges and universities. And to-day we have the statement of no less a person than Professor Max Muller, of Oxford University, (England), that there are more Englishmen studying in German universities than there are Englishmen studying in English schools. Even Professor William D. Whitney, of Yale College, than whom there are few greater philologists in the world, says: "There are more students of German in American colleges than of all foreign languages combined."

This noble language is the mother-tongue of Schiller and Goethe, of Kant and Fichte, of Jean Paul Fr. Richter and Helme. Who would have thought it possible, a few years ago, that even here in Maysville the German language would be introduced into our High School, and that a class of one hundred and twenty-three students would pursue this study? Yet such is the case.

But you are waiting patiently to be addressed on the subject of Schiller. Well, you all know this great and good man was born November 10, 1759, in Marbach, Germany. By birth and language he was German, yet we Americans may call him our own by virtue of those great ideas, which are not confined to any idiom or territorial limits, but which have pervaded civilized society and become a possession of this human world. Schiller belongs to us by the universality of genius, by a certain fellowship of spirit, and by the great communion of that religion of truth and beauty of which he was so eminently an exponent. That which made him the idol of Germany, has made him the joy of the whole world. We are constrained to glow with Germany over the patriotism of William Tell and Gertrude, over the noble Marquis von Posa. We must weep at the love of Thekla and Max Piccolomini and triumph in the heroism of a Joan of Arc. Our hearts are thrilled with ecstasy in "The Ode of Joy," and vibrate in harmony to the "Song of the Bell."

Personally, to-day, I bring this humble offering, a tribute to the memory of a spirit who had much to do with my own destiny. At the most susceptible period of my life, I was brought into communion with the genius of Schiller, and my first poetic revelations were from him.

"Des Lebens Mai blüht einmal und nicht wieder." Life has but one spring time and the poet, who speaks to that period and from that period, stirs us to no subsequent poetry can. No writer has ever spoken with such spirit stirring power to the young, as this poet. He is the most eloquent of all poets. Poetry and eloquence, in their proper essence, are quite distinct; the latter does not always accompany the former. Indeed, many first-class poets are without eloquence. Goethe did not possess it, neither did Milton or Wordsworth. It is true, eloquence is not considered the highest element in poetry, but it is that which speaks most emphatically to the heart of the youth. Schiller had this quality almost in excess. Ofttimes the truth of his vision was eclipsed by the fire of his verse, as a conflagration pales the stars.

Schiller is, at the same time, national and cosmopolitan. He was the first who spoke to the universal heart of Germany, and he elicited a full response to his verse. He has done more than all others to awaken and cherish the present national consciousness in Germany. The great William von Humboldt says of him: "By his purity and lofty idealism he has kept the whole nation pure."

Lessing, Herder and Goethe wrote for scholars; but Schiller first struck the sympathetic chord of the people, and it vibrated in harmony from the Danube to the Baltic ocean. It was he who stirred by his William Tell the spirit of liberty, which had slumbered since the peace of Westphalia. No writer since Luther has so touched the keynote of popular feeling. Schiller is the poet of protestantism, as Luther is its prophet. He is thoroughly German in his style, yet the most translatable into other tongues, the easiest understood by other nations, and the most easily naturalized in foreign lands. The whole civilized world has granted him a monument. It is right and fit that we, as Americans, in our modest little assembly, should honor Schiller here to-night. All the liberty we enjoy, we owe indirectly to our German descent. Two races divide the christian world to-day—the Roman and the German. The Roman, since the time of Augustus, represents dominion; the German since the time of Hermann, represents freedom. It is the German blood in us—that element which repelled Roman sway—once in the Teutoburger Forest under Hermann, and once in the imperial hall of my own native city. Worms on the Rhine under Martin Luther—this element it was that emancipated our fathers from the ecclesiastical authority and dictation in the old world and from colonial exactions in the new. And here I am reminded of another birthday, which this day couples in beautiful harmony with that of Schiller. This is the birth anniversary of a greater man than Schiller, and without whom no Schiller and no American independence would have been possible—a man to whom modern society is indebted as to no other individual, whose words were lightnings and whose thoughts were realities. In naming this man, I mean the very genius of Germany, and of intellectual freedom, I claim your grateful homage for the name of Luther.

Schiller is eminently the poet of liberty. Defiance of despotism, impatience of unjust and pernicious restraint appears conspicuous in every page of his writings. Freedom was like his very breath, the atmosphere of his muse, the inspiration of his genius. The religion of humanity permeates all his writings. This religion inspired the heroic breasts of Tell and Posa; it sweetened the last parting of Max and Thekla; it sanctified the last hours of the erring Mary Stuart and opened heaven with all its glories to the dying eyes of Joan of Arc. It is this truly religious spirit which makes him so dear to the heart of his nation. To the young men and young women of all nations he left his last will and message in the language of the dying Posa to his beloved Dan Carlos: "O bleibe treu den Traumen deiner Jugend." (O remain true to the impulses of thy youth). Let us all accept this last will and message; let us follow his call; let us remain true to the noble and generous impulses of our youth, in order that we enjoy with him a youth eternal.

After the address, Mr. Charles Hancock arose and turning to the large portrait of Schiller recited an ode to the memory of the great poet.

Miss Nellie Chapin followed with the recitation of Schiller's "Pilgrim." It is an allegory and remarkable for its unity and beauty of language.

Miss Anna Shackelford recited "The Maiden's Lament," which Thekla sings in the third act of Wallenstein.

The allegoric poem, "The Maiden from Afar," was recited by Miss Elizabeth Chapin. It was composed in 1797 and represents the approach of spring. It is a great favorite with all who love clearness and simplicity of language.

The "Song of the Bell" was recited by Miss Bessie Johnson and Mr. John Chapin, Miss Johnson taking the part of the master workman and Mr. Chapin the part of the philosopher. This is Schiller's greatest didactic poem. It is quite long—having 425 lines.

Mr. Buckner A. Wallingford, Jr., followed with the declamation of the largest of all monologues—that of William Tell, when he meditates the killing of the tyrant Gessler.

After the declamations the society indulged in an informal German conversation and adjourned to Wednesday night, Nov. 28. The regular meetings occur every two weeks.

M'Corkle—Chesebrough.

New York, November 14.—A number of Baltimoreans, Virginians and New Yorkers assembled at noon to-day in St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square, to witness a very pretty midday wedding. Mr. Walter L. McCorkle, formerly of Virginia and now prominent member of the New York bar, was married to Miss Margaret Chesebrough, only daughter of Commodore Chas. A. Chesebrough, of Northport, L. I., Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainesford, pastor of the church, officiating. There were no bridesmaids. The church was well filled with the friends of the bride and groom, many of whom had come a long distance to witness the ceremony.

The bride, who was very pretty, with chestnut-brown hair, entered the church precisely at noon, accompanied by her brother, Mr. William M. Chesebrough, who gave her away. She looked charming in white faille francaise royal, with court train, draped in point with tulle, which was beautifully embroidered with marguerites; tulle veil also trimmed with marguerites, caught up with diamond ornaments. Mr. J. H. Ingram acted as best man. Dr. Charles A. Jackson, Mr. Clifford Harbridge, Mr. Noah Slee and Mr. Frank T. A. Jenkins, all well known New York society men, were the ushers. Mr. and Mrs. McCorkle will take a southern trip, stopping in Baltimore, where the groom is well known, and on their return will live at the Grand Hotel.

Railroad Notes.

It is reported that New York parties are after the Kentucky Central.

Construction trains are now running through to Covington over the new road.

The Chesapeake and Ohio has ordered recently four locomotives from the Schenectady Locomotive Works, ten from the Cooke Locomotive Works, and will place orders shortly for ten more.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Kentucky Midland Railroad, at Frankfort last week, steps were taken to carry on the work, and the board authorized the formation of a construction company, for the purpose of running the line on to the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky, and to a connection with the Kentucky Union Railroad. No definite point of connection was named, but the work will be begun as soon as the company is organized and the proposed line surveyed. In addition to this extension comes the report, seemingly from headquarters, that within six months the Midland will have run another branch of its road from Frankfort to Lexington. Mr. Joseph H. Robinson, of the Midland, who has been securing the right of way for the project, reports much success, and it is said that work will be commenced within thirty days.

County Court.

A duly authenticated copy of the last will and testament of the late Ferdinand Hechinger, of Baltimore, was filed and admitted to record. A. M. J. Cochran was appointed administrator with the will annexed, and executed bond with James Barbour and R. A. Cochran sureties. S. Davis, Asa R. Burgess and J. M. C. Ballenger were appointed appraisers. There are several small bequests in the will to various charitable institutions, principally of Baltimore, but the bulk of the estate is willed to the wife and children of the deceased.

Its Delicacy of Flavor

and the efficacy of its action have rendered fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, immensely popular. It cleanses and tones up the clogged and feverish system, and dispels headaches, colds and fevers. For sale in 50 cent and $1 bottles.

The Acts.

The acts of the last Legislature have been received by County Clerk Ball and are ready for distribution among the Justices of the Peace and other officials who are entitled to them. The acts are published in three volumes, one of 976 pages, one of 992 and the other of 1,232 pages.

The Protracted Meeting.

There was a good attendance at the 3 o'clock services in the M. E. Church, South, yesterday afternoon, and a large crowd was present last night. Rev. H. C. Morrison, the eloquent minister who is assisting the pastor, preached excellent sermons at both services. His text last night was from Luke, sixteenth chapter, nineteenth to thirty-first verses.

Preaching again this afternoon at 3 o'clock and to-night at 7 o'clock. The sermon to-night is intended for the Sunday school pupils of this city and all such are especially asked to be present. All are invited.

Personals.

Miss Annie Bona is at Lexington visiting friends and relatives, and will stop at Winchester on her return trip home.

THERE will be no services in Mitchell Chapel to-night on account of the protracted meeting in Maysville church. I would be gratified to have the congregation together with the singers attend the meeting in Maysville.

D. A. BEARDSLEY.

Kentucky.

[Manufacturers' Record.]

In natural resources and in advantages of soil, climate, minerals and timber, Kentucky is probably not surpassed by any other State in the Union, and is equalled by few. Realizing their advantages and the great possibilities before them, the people of Kentucky are turning their attention to the development of their material resources. In nearly every part of the State there is awakening spirit of energy and enterprise, and all indications point to the early coming of a period of great industrial activity. In Louisville the business men and capitalists are displaying great energy, not only in pushing their own city to the front, but in their efforts to advance the prosperity of the whole State. They have seen how the mineral developments of Alabama have revolutionized that State, and added millions of dollars to its wealth; and they have determined to duplicate Alabama's marvelous growth. Never before in the history of Kentucky was the outlook for great progress and prosperity so brilliant as it is to-day.

COMPLICATIONS.

European Politicians Puzzled More Than Ever

AT THE POSSIBLE RESULTS OF THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

The Central Alliance Making Itself Felt in China.—Bill introduced to appropriate £5,000,000 to further facilitate the purchase of land in Ireland by tenants—Foreign.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—European politicians are becoming more puzzled than ever at the possible complications of the triple alliance. The advantages which Austria and Italy will reap from it become more obvious every day, and it is certain that Germany is satisfied with the situation. Italy is relieved from the fear which she has always felt of France, and in the exultation of her deliverance has made claims which would have seemed presumptuous some years ago. The wine-inspired speeches of the Italian general who proclaimed that henceforth there was to be no thoroughfare across the Alps testifies to the national feeling, but military critics place little dependence upon the morals of the Italian soldiers.

It is a point worth remarking that so far as China, the force of central alliance has made itself felt. The Celestial government has yielded the point that in future the Italian missionaries, who are engaged in the benevolent, but seemingly fruitless task of converting the heathen in that country, shall have for their safeguards passports in the name of their own country instead of that of France as heretofore. The shrewd rulers over the destinies of China must have become convinced of the increased importance of Italy before changing the traditional policy of the conservative empire in such a suggestive manner. France has always by diplomacy and force of arms endeavored to impress upon eastern nations an idea of her importance among European powers, and although reverses have befallen her in her attempts lately she will not relinquish her idea for any slight considerations.

M. Goblet faced the free thinking element boldly in the chamber of deputies, when he urged the importance of maintaining the friendly relations with the Vatican for the purpose of keeping up the virtual protectorate, which France has for more than a century exercised in the east. Exactly what returns it yields in a practical way the French must be considered the best judges, but they have clung to their policy at the cost of no insignificant amount of lives and money. It will be going to National pride to have their supremacy in the orient interfered with, but the attacks upon the budget have shown it to be very likely that economy will outweigh sentiment for the future, and the financial outlook of France is one demanding serious consideration.

Irish Legislation.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—In the British house of commons Monday the government introduced a bill to appropriate $25,000,000 to further facilitate the purchase of lands in Ireland by tenants. Mr. Madden, solicitor-general for Ireland, said that there had under the act been 14,338 agreements for purchase signed, of which 6,632 had been completed.

Mr. Gladstone did not seriously object to the act, although its effect is to substitute the state for the landlords, and rather shovel gold into the pockets of the landlords than relieve the tenants. He desired to amend it so as to empower the courts to reduce or cancel arrears of rent that are found to be excessive.

In the eviction from the estate of Hon. R. T. O'Neill, Conservative member of parliament for Middle Antrim, at Dapertstown, County Londonderry, on Saturday, a bed-ridden woman, ninety-two years of age, was taken from her bed and carried to a house some distance away. A fierce gale was prevailing at the time, and the woman was chilled to the marrow upon reaching her quarters.

Another woman became delirious from the shock of her ejection with her four children, one baby only three months old. Her furniture was carried to the roadside where it was blown into the mud by the gale and most of it destroyed. Fifty policemen were present to protect the evictors and arrest anyone making violent resistance.

Serious Charge Against Bismarck.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The St. Petersburg Messenger makes the surprising charge against Prince Bismarck that in 1863, he then being in the diplomatic service of Prussia, and pretending all the time to be acting for the czar, entered into a plot for the annexation of Russian Poland to Prussia. It is not so much the charge itself as the fact that the Russian censorship allowed it to be published in a St. Petersburg Journal, that excites astonishment.

THE FENIANS.

The British American Association Classes Them With the Anarchists.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—At a meeting of the British American association Monday night the following resolutions were adopted with much enthusiasm:

"WHEREAS, A certain policeman in the discharge of duty in an English city was foully murdered by three members of the Fenian brotherhood, who, for said crime, expiated the full demand of justice; and

"WHEREAS, Certain Irishmen of Fenian and dynamite propensities in this city have engaged Central Music hall for the 23d inst., to commemorate the atrocities of the murderers whom they call martyrs; therefore, be it

"RESOLVED, That the British American association cannot distinguish the difference between our brave policemen who fell at the Haymarket, and a brother policeman in the city of Manchester cruelly murdered for performing his duty; and

"RESOLVED, That the Anarchists have the same tangible rights as Fenians. We deprecate such gatherings as being subversive and dangerous to our enlightened civilization, and call on American citizens to stamp out Fenianism, dynamitism and Anarchism in our midst."

This he has kept up for nearly a year, and yesterday it was discovered that he was making a poor grade of whisky. The still was taken possession of and Hawk sent to jail.

A Six-Year-Old Burned to Death.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21.—A distressing affair is reported from Manchester township, Dearborn county, Indiana, fifteen miles from Lawrenceburg. The children of Hanson Goodwin and Samuel Griffin were playing on the bank of Tanners creek on Sunday, and becoming chilled with the cold built a fire to warm themselves. Afterward, for amusement, they chased each other with blazing sticks. One of the Griffin children applied a blazing fagot to the clothing of the six-year-old daughter of Mr. Goodwin, setting fire to her dress. The child ran in the wind with her ignited clothing, and was soon enveloped in a sheet of flame, that burned and charred her flesh to the bone, until she fell dying by the roadside. The other children were too badly frightened to render any assistance, and the little sufferer perished where she fell.

Piping Natural Gas.

WARREN, Ind., Nov. 21.—The natural gas pipeline which is to supply this city is nearly completed, having reached a point a mile and a half from the city limits. A magnificent display was made last night, gas from two wells moving been turned into the line. There was a great shower of stones from the end of the pipe, and they were thrown several hundred feet. In another week the gas will be here and distributed.

Paymaster and Money Missing.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A Herald special from Moline, Ill., says: W. D. Stoughton, paymaster for the Moline Wagon company, aged twenty-five years, is missing, and it has been discovered that within the past few years he has drawn over $10,000 wages made out to imaginary parties. He was a fast young man, with only a moderate salary.

A Peacemaker Murdered.

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 21.—John Armstrong, an engineer in the Grape creek mines in this county, and his wife had a family quarrel Monday evening. Joseph Glasgow, a boarder at the house, undertook to interfere, when Armstrong drew a revolver and shot him through the heart. Armstrong took to the woods.

Two Children Burned to Death.

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 21.—Monday evening Mrs. John Broadman left her two children alone in the house while she went out in the yard to milk the cow. While gone the children, who were playing near the grate, were burned to death, their clothing catching fire.

Epidemic of Diphtheria.

WATERLOO, Iowa, Nov. 21.—There is an epidemic of diphtheria at Alden, Hardin county. The city council has declared that all schools and churches be closed, and forbidden any public gatherings or attendance upon any funeral of persons other than those necessary to bury the dead.

Tradesmen's Signs in Russia.

In Holland and Belgium the names of the railway stations are given in three or four different languages. In Berlin and in Paris there is more consideration shown for the foreigners than in Petersburg. The Russian thinks that in Russia Russian suffices as a means of communication. Fortunately in his shop fronts he mercifully interprets his Cyrillic characters by that original volapuk of the world's infancy, the picture. The use of signs, once universal in England in an age when few save the priests could read or write, is now confined with us almost exclusively to the public house. In Russia, the number of literates being still small in proportion to the population, the tradesman has recourse, not to signs, but to the simple and obvious expedient of painting upon the outside walls of his establishment more or less vivid pictures of all the articles which he has on sale.

The butcher's front is covered with frescoes of legs of mutton and sirloins of beef. The green grocer glows resplendent behind a wall full of painted cabbages, carrots and turnips. Tempting pictures of the warmest of fur overcoats proclaim the dealer in winter wraps. Some of these mural advertisements are wretched dabs, as bad as our signboards. But others are very fairly executed; and, considering the difficulty of the subject and the stucco on which the artist has to work, the result is not unsatisfactory. The effect of the whole is to give much more variety and color to the streets of St. Petersburg than we can boast in western capitals.—W. T. Stead in Contemporary Review.

A Saving All Around.

A correspondent says: "Any one who runs on the railroad long can understand what a saving it would be to the stock dealer and the railroads if the tracks were fenced in. It would prevent cattle straying on the track. The slaughter of the cattle along the roads is something terrible, especially in the Indian territory. To see an engine dash into a herd of cattle is enough to sicken any one. I've known as many as thirty cows and horses to be killed at one swoop. The engineer can't stop, and the only thing he can do is to put on steam and hit the animals as hard as possible to knock them from the track, for if he don't he'll derail his engine and probably kill his passengers. When the engine strikes the cattle they are knocked up into the air and to one side, and often they burst and festoon the engine with their entrails. Sheep are often killed. If one sheep happens to cross a track in front of an engine every other one will follow, and they'll try to go through right under the moving cars. In the territory coyotes and deer are often killed, and there are any number of snakes ground up. When the engine is going rapidly birds often fly against the headlight and get killed, and the trainmen often get lots of game that way."—Mississippi Paper.

American Coins Less Valuable.

It would surprise one not in the business to see the number of people who come to us with coins to ascertain if there is not a premium on them. Of course, the large majority of these are American coins. There are but a few American coins that have any value to a coin collector. These are mostly of a date in which year but a few were issued, and for this reason they have a value above their denomination. Pieces of money of an extremely old date are valuable, of course, but this does not apply to American coins. The fact is, coins become valuable when they are rare.

A Cuban named Isidor Cejas committed suicide in his cell at Nassau, N. P., by hanging himself with a strip of canvas. He was arrested on a charge of murder committed in Havana in February, 1885, and was being held for extradition.

About 1,700 bales of cotton aboard the steamer Elphinstone, loading for Bremen, were damaged at Charleston, S. C., while a fire in the vessel's hold was being extinguished. The cargo was insured partly in the Atlantic Mutual of New York and partly abroad.
